were informed by Mr. Mackintosh that their services would no longer be required, and on being asked by the men how they were to get home, said he gi, well they would have to walk, as the company had not agreed to carry them back to town, but if they waited until a train came through from Sait Lake they could rife. As the men had bothing to eat all day, and as there was little prospect of getting anything at the summit, and as there was fittle prospect of getting anything at the summit, and as there was no could at the section house with which to make a five, the boys determined to walk back to town. Arthur Canary and a friend were the hast to leave, and had not progressed far until they were overtaken by hist night's storm, which was a lerror up there in the mountains. They struggled along for hours, finally making the stone quarry near Snyderwille, when they were taken in, fed and given shelter for the night. They saw nor heard nothing of the other seventeen men, and at this writing it is not known what became of them, but it its supplesed they are safely housed at some ratich. It looks like a cold-blooded piece of work on the part of the company to take men out into the mountains, work them all day without anything to eat and then turn them loose to get home the best way they could."

the part of the company to take men out lait the mountains, work them all day without anything to eat and then turn them loose to get home the best way they could.

General Superintendent Mackintosh is very indignant at what he terms the scurrilous attack upon himself and the road, and vesterday aftermon stated to a Herald reporter that the statements set out are almost wholly untrue and cuttirely uncalled for. "In the first place, we did not have mine been men, but only twelve," said the gentleman. "And these twelve were not worked all day without food and then turned leose to get home the best way they could. When the summit of the mountain was reached, the Park City man declined to continue work and demanded transportation back to the Park This I was unable to fornish just then, but promised that as soon as we had out through to take first station and could get an additional supply of coal, I would send a train to the Park for their accommodation. All of the men had brought their dinners from home and more and walled back to the station bouse. I was not catisfied and coal, until the storm then have made of the men to remain at the station where there was thenly of food and coal, until the storm then bur were sating a lost supper and but one of them started for the Park that night, remaining at the state of the sen and if they experienced any discounting at they appear and but one of them started for the Park that night, remaining at the state on the part of the men and if they experienced any discounting at they appear and but one of them started for the Park that night, remaining at the state of the men and if they experienced any discounting at the state of the men and if they experienced any discounting at the state of the men and if they experienced any discounting at the state of the men and if they experienced any discounting at the state of the men and if they experienced any discounting at the state of the men and it they appear and but one of them and the started for the Park that night, remaining a
